

Insights: Webinars

Fintech and Banking in 2017: Exploring Special Purpose National Bank Charters for Fintech Companies

Wednesday, May 24, 2017 -

Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton hosted a one-hour webinar during which Partner Christina Gattuso and Counsel Eamonn Moran discussed the recent decision of the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC) to move forward with considering applications from financial technology (fintech) companies to become special purpose national banks. They provided an overview of the additional guidance recently provided by the OCC on evaluating special purpose national bank charter applications from fintech companies that engage in the business of banking and highlighted the unique factors that the agency will consider in evaluating applications from fintech companies. Finally, they offered insights on the outlook for this initiative going forward, as Comptroller Curry's term has expired.

Watch the on-demand webinar here! Registration required.

What to Expect: Want a quick snapshot of what you might learn? View the Top Takeaways of the Day.

Questions? If you have any follow-up questions, please do not hesitate to contact the speakers or your Kilpatrick Townsend attorney.

Event Details

Wednesday, May 24, 2017

Related People

Christina M. Gattuso

Partner

Washington, DC

t 202.508.5884

cgattuso@kilpatricktownsend.com